Update on legal proceedings against Huawei in Singapore – Court of Appeal allows Creative’s Appeal for additional damages and dismisses Huawei’s Appeal

We refer to the Company’s disclosures made on 16 August 2017 with regard to the judgment issued by the High Court of Singapore on the same date (hereinafter referred to as the “Judgment”) concerning legal proceedings initiated by the Company and its subsidiary QMax Communications Pte Ltd (“QMax”) against Huawei International Pte Ltd (“Huawei”); and on 15 September 2017 with regard to the appeals filed by the Company and QMax (“Creative’s Appeal”), and by Huawei (“Huawei’s Appeal”) in connection with the Judgment.

The Singapore Court of Appeal (the “CA”) heard both the appeals on 25 May 2018 and issued its oral decision on the same date.

The CA dismissed Huawei’s Appeal and granted Creative’s Appeal with regard of certain sums. In doing so, the CA ordered that Huawei pay the Company and QMax an additional sum of approximately S$2.3m (in addition to the amounts previously awarded by the High Court of US$9.3 million and S$15.6 million with interest). The CA also awarded costs to the Company and QMax. The CA’s judgment is final and non-appealable.

Following the CA’s judgment, Creative expects to recognise an income arising from the above-mentioned legal proceedings of approximately US$32 million (S$43 million) in the quarter ending 30 June 2018.
