Appendix 1

No.	Question	Response
No. 1	Question  I am a bit concerned of the Toga Trust investment JV. Was it a good investment? How will its investment be performing going forward? Thank you.	Up till FY2019 (pre-COVID), investment in Toga Trust had been generating a positive annualised return.  The hospitality industry is one of the most directly adversely affected sectors by the COVID-19 pandemic. Inevitably, the business of Toga Trust, which operates in Australia, New Zealand and Europe, had been hit the hardest by government restrictions linked to the COVID-19 health crisis over the past two years. Extensive border closures and snap lockdowns resulted in all-time low revenue per available room. The impact would have been worse if not for various measures implemented to adjust the cost structures in the business, and the receipt of government grants in the form of wage subsidies and bridging aids from the Australia and German governments.
		Over the past two years, the operating business of Toga Trust, Toga-Far East Hotels ("TFE Hotels"), had continued to push ahead with the openings and expanded its presence in Europe, including to new countries such as Austria. In FY2021, TFE Hotels had also debuted a new brand, the 'A by Adina' hotel brand, with the opening of two properties in Australia – Canberra and Sydney.
		The Group believes that our investment in Toga Trust enables us to look for new growth opportunities and streamline our operations to maximise synergies and efficiencies. For example, in March 2021, the Group debuted its Quincy brand outside of Singapore, through the opening of Quincy Hotel Melbourne in Melbourne, Australia.
		According to the World Tourism Organization, it is expected that tourism will likely return to pre-COVID levels in 2024 or later. This is in line with the Group's strategy forecast for the sector.

		With domestic travel expected to steer tourism's recovery, the Group's properties in Australia and Germany (countries with strong domestic markets) are poised to capitalise on this.
2	Doos the company have any share	The Group is confident in the long-term prospect of the sector and our investment in the Toga Trust JV.
	Does the company have any share buyback plans?	An important component of the Group's strategy entails the growth and expansion of its key businesses in hospitality and PBSA.
		The Group believes that long-term share price will reflect a consistent emphasis on sound business fundamentals driven by strong management and good corporate governance. Should there be any share buyback plans, the Group will make the relevant announcements in accordance with listing regulations.
