Business Outlook

On 16 April 2020, the Group provided an update on its operations, stating that it is continuing to operate worldwide without significant adverse impact from the anti-Covid-19 measures that have been implemented by the various government agencies. The Group maintains its revenue guidance for FY2020 to be between $$360 million to $$380 million, and capital expenditure is expected to remain at about $$4 million to support engineering and business development needs for new customer programs.

The Group has been working with various potential customers on its AMPS (Asynchronous Modular Parallel Smart) platform, MEMS Testing Solutions (Afore) and TMS services, to grow its customer base. The TMS division has completed the development project on optical fiber cable-test equipment for 5G backhaul networks. It is currently working with several customers on initial orders. The SLT-i division has successfully installed initial commercial systems for a memory manufacturer and gained traction on its collaboration efforts with some customers to develop AMPS platform for them. The Group remains positive on the outlook of these business segments.

The spread of the Covid-19 has started to cause disruptions to many industries and dampened the economic outlook. The shift to telecommuting, work-from-home and virtual learning has created an increase in demand for semiconductor chips for servers, PCs and notebooks.

As the industry becomes increasingly aware of the significance and benefits of system-level testing to test more advanced chips, AEM has gained recognition within semiconductor customers. Our advanced semiconductor testing solutions have placed AEM in an advantageous position to tap on the growth of system-level testing in Cloud, 5G, EV, IoT and AI, especially in these critical times.
