in engineering, procurement, construction and installation support for these sectors. Its two shipyards in Singapore have a combined waterfront of 205 metres.

This win-win partnership offers Dyna-Mac greater flexibility to address the spikes in FPSO vessel module fabrication demand and allows it to further entrench its strategic presence in the FPSO module fabrication business through inorganic growth of its production capacity. Through the collaboration, Kim Heng will also benefit by participating in larger, more complex and valuable projects tapping on Dyna-Mac's know-how and client base in the FPSO module fabrication business.

The FPSO module fabrication sector refers to a specialised segment within the oil and gas industry that focuses on the construction, assembly, and integration of modules intended for use on FPSO vessels. FPSOs are offshore facilities that combine the functions of production, storage, and offloading of oil and gas.
