Moody's reaffirms Origin's investment grade credit rating

On 22 January 2016, Moody's Investor Services (Moody's) placed Origin Energy Limited's (Origin) rating on review following a reduction in Moody's central oil price scenario.

Origin notes that Moody's has completed its review and reaffirmed its long-term senior unsecured credit rating for Origin at Baa3 (negative).

Moody's announcement follows Standard & Poor's Financial Services' decision on 18 March 2016 to reaffirm its long-term senior unsecured credit rating for Origin as BBB- (stable).

Origin continues to take action to strengthen its balance sheet and build resilience in its two existing businesses to a low oil price environment. The company has in excess of $6.6 billion of committed undrawn debt facilities and cash¹ – which is more than sufficient to support remaining contributions to Australia Pacific LNG – and no material refinancing requirements until FY19.
