SGX Twenty-Seventh Annual General Meeting 2026

21 October 2026

Responses to Additional Shareholders' Questions

SGX Group (Singapore Exchange) would like to thank shareholders for the additional questions submitted in advance of our Twenty-Seventh Annual General Meeting to be held at Marina Bay Sands Expo and Convention Centre, Level 3, Jasmine Ballroom, 10 Bayfront Avenue, Singapore 018956 on Friday, 23 October 2026 at 10.30 a.m. (Singapore time).

Below are our responses to the questions, which have been reworded for clarity while retaining their original intent.

1. SGX has attracted more listings, including companies from traditional sectors such as construction, engineering and shipping. How successful has SGX been in attracting listings in non-traditional sectors, and what more can be done to strengthen Singapore's appeal to such companies?

While the sectoral diversity of our IPO pipeline has improved, we can do better in attracting innovative growth companies to list on SGX. Our SGX-Nasdaq Global Listing Board has changed the nature of our conversations with potential issuers, allowing us to engage more growth-oriented and innovative companies earlier in their development journey. SGX will also continue to partner our ecosystem partners and invest in efforts to build investor awareness and understanding of new business models, as part of our broader strategy to build sector diversity.

2. How is SGX improving the CDP website and its digital services for retail investors?

We have enhanced our CDP Investor Portal to enable investors to better manage their CDP account and corporate actions, view their holdings, statements and notifications, as well as access tools such as the stock screener.

However, the Investor Portal serves a different purpose from a broker's trading platform. As Singapore moves towards wider adoption of broker custody accounts, investors who choose this model will benefit from a more integrated experience, with portfolio management, trading and corporate actions available through a single broker platform.

3. What is SGX doing to increase investor interest in smaller-cap companies, beyond sponsoring research?

We are taking a range of measures to build interest and liquidity in small and mid-cap companies. These include enhanced GEMS research support, market-making initiatives and the iEdge Singapore Next 50 Index to spotlight companies beyond the Straits Times Index, alongside efforts such as our Value Unlock programme to strengthen shareholder engagement and long-term value creation.

Our focus is to sustain this momentum by improving visibility, liquidity and investor engagement across the segment. Results are encouraging as we are already seeing stronger trading activity from both institutional and retail investors in stocks beyond index constituents.

4. How is SGX encouraging more younger investors to participate in the Singapore stock market?

We are making the Singapore stock market more accessible and relevant to younger investors. In particular, we are focused on helping younger investors take that first step and develop an investing mindset. This month, we lowered board lot sizes, reducing the upfront cost of investing in higher-priced stocks. Through Invest in Action, we have refreshed our investor education approach with a greater focus on experiential and community learning. Enhanced GEMS support will make research more accessible through investor-friendly digital content. We are also bringing more global opportunities closer to investors in our market through our Singapore Depository Receipts and ETF product suite.

Responses to Shareholders' Questions

SGX Group (Singapore Exchange) would like to thank shareholders for submitting their questions in advance of our Twenty-Seventh Annual General Meeting to be held at Marina Bay Sands Expo and Convention Centre, Level 3, Jasmine Ballroom, 10 Bayfront Avenue, Singapore 018956 on Friday, 23 October 2026 at 10.30 a.m. (Singapore time).

Below are our responses to the questions, which have been reworded for clarity while retaining their original intent.

1. Will SGX consider extending trading hours in view of moves by some exchanges to extend their trading hours?

We do not have any immediate plans to extend trading hours for our stock market. Our current priority is to implement the EMRG measures and deepen market liquidity. We will consider extending trading hours if it delivers clear, measurable benefits for our investors and market participants, taking into account implications such as liquidity fragmentation and the changes required across the ecosystem.

2. Is SGX reviewing the 30-bid limit to support liquidity and trading activity?

SGX has proposed enhancements to members' risk management tools, including price and position limits and the removal of the forced order range of +/- 30 bids, as part of the implementation of our new trading engine for the stock market. We are reviewing the consultation feedback and will update the market in due course.

3. Does SGX have any plans to offer equity options trading?

We do not have immediate plans to introduce equity options. We regularly evaluate new products based on investor demand, ecosystem readiness and support from market participants. We have in recent years expanded our range of exchange-traded funds (ETFs) and Singapore depository receipts.

4. Does SGX plan to introduce more global equity ETFs, including products that provide greater exposure to Asian growth companies like TSMC, Samsung Electronics and Hynix?

SGX is working with ETF issuers to bring more of the global opportunities closer to home. These new opportunities could include ETFs with broader geographical coverage including emerging market exposure. This is part of SGX's strategy to put in place a range of ETFs that can form low-cost building blocks for portfolio diversification.

5. What factors may have contributed to the recent decline in SGX Group's share price from late August to early October 2026?

While we do not comment on short-term stock performance, we saw some reassessments of valuations and growth expectations, and some analysts revised their outlook on SGX. Our core business fundamentals remain strong, and we remain fully focused on executing our multi-asset strategy to drive sustainable, long-term value for shareholders.
