KORE'S RESPONSE

Spaces that bring people together

1. Amenity spaces
   Encourage interaction, collaboration and community
2. Spec suites
   Intentional workspaces – some with on-floor amenities that offer gathering and meeting places
3. Differentiated experience
   Strengthen tenant appeal and leasing relevance

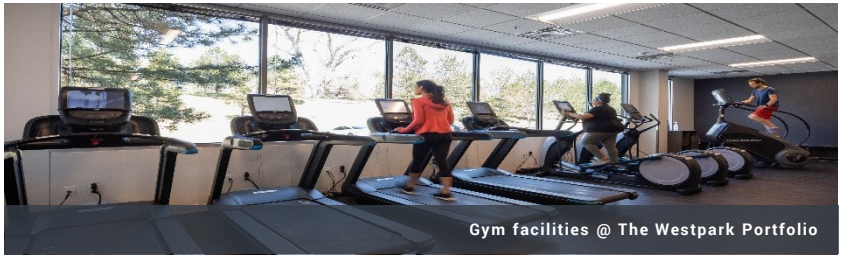

Amenity-led assets and move-in-ready spec suites increase leasing appeal for KORE spaces

Flight to Quality Continues to Occur

Employee experience, location and building quality continue to shape leasing decisions

Why Occupiers Move

79% — 01 Improve employee experience

74% — 02 Improve building location

59% — 03 Secure better lease terms

Employee experience and location are key relocation drivers

WHAT OFFICE BUILDINGS NEED TO DELIVER

01	Convenience	Parking, accessibility to transport and food & beverage are key site-selection considerations
02	Tenant Experience	Building amenity space and overall quality increasingly influence competitiveness
03	Building Quality	Amenity space and sustainable building features are increasingly seen as baseline expectations

Source: Americas Office Occupier Sentiment Survey, July 2026, CBRE Research 2026.

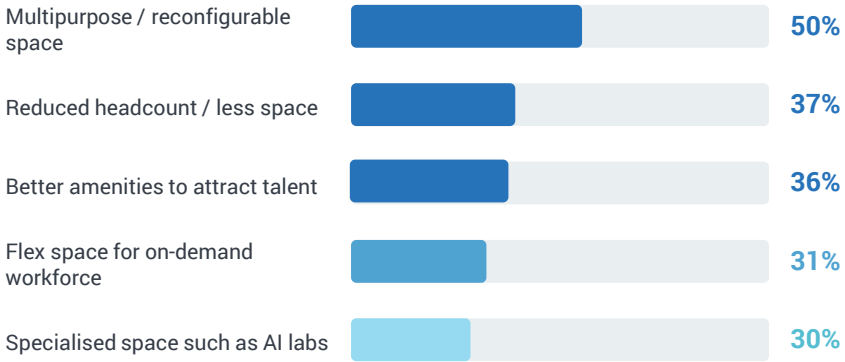

AI Starts to Reshape Workplace Needs

Emergence of amenity-rich, modular and flexible environments

53% say AI is already affecting space planning or will do so within two years

23%	11%	19%
Already	<12 months	1–2 years

Expected impact on workplace needs

Implications for quality office assets

Experience	Higher-quality amenities can help occupiers compete for talent.
Adaptability	Reconfigurable layouts can support evolving team and project needs.
Specialisation	Innovation, training and technology-enabled environments may require new formats.

What it means for KORE

Emerging need for flexible, amenity-rich and higher-quality workplaces aligns with KORE's ongoing asset and leasing strategy

Source: Americas Office Occupier Sentiment Survey, Q2 2026, CBRE Research 2026.

US Office Transaction Market

Liquidity and pricing remain uneven across markets and asset quality

01

MARKET DEPTH REMAINS LIMITED

Recovery remains selective, with greater transaction depth evident only in New York (1)

Deal activity for the largest office properties remains well below 2018–2019 averages

02

PRICE DISCOVERY IS BIFURCATED

Very limited pool of well-leased, high-quality assets in New York City and select growth markets such as Nashville(2) continue to attract capital, while assets in more challenged markets may transact only after substantial repricing

03

FINANCING CONDITIONS ADD FRICTION

Elevated financing costs may constrain buyer capacity, required returns(3) and near-term transaction activity

KORE's priorities

Continue leasing and enhancing the portfolio, while exploring divestment opportunities as transaction activity, market depth and pricing become more conducive in KORE's markets

(1) Excluding transactions identified in public sources as involving foreclosure, receivership, deed-in-lieu, loan default or auction.
(2) Bridgestone Tower, Nashville: 100% leased; US$75 million gain on sale by Highwoods Properties.
(3) The Surge in Rates Is Blowing Up Commercial Real-Estate Deals, Wall Street Journal, 5 October 2026

Focused Execution to Strengthen Occupancy, Income and Financial Flexibility

01 Drive occupancy

Focused leasing execution

- Backfill vacancies and known vacates
- Expand spec-suite strategy to accelerate lease-up and reduce downtime
- Target end-FY2026 occupancy of at least 87.0%

02 Sustain income

Measured rental outlook

- Optimise rental rates while maintaining high occupancy
- 2.6% in-built portfolio rental escalations, alongside low-single-digit FY2026 rental reversion expected
- Shorter lease terms provide opportunities to capture rental upside as markets recover

03 Stable distributions

Distribution outlook

- Expect DPU to remain consistent at 0.40 US cents for each of 2H 2026 and 1H 2027, subject to prevailing market and financing conditions and interest-rate movements
- In the long term, aims to progressively increase the payout ratio towards a sustainable level, aligned with KORE's portfolio performance

04 Strengthen financial flexibility

Disciplined capital management

- Proactively manage refinancing and interest-rate exposure
- Maintain financial flexibility and prudent gearing
- Evaluate selective divestments when transaction markets become more conducive; redeploy proceeds towards debt reduction and/or growth opportunities

Notable 3Q 2026 Leasing Activities

- The Plaza Buildings: 50% of "The Post", full spec-suite floor, committed
- The Westpark Portfolio: secured a 10-year lease with a publicly traded global life sciences instrumentation company tenant (~32,400 sf)
- Westmoor Center: successful backfilling offsets known tenant downsizing
- 1800 West Loop South: known vacate (~12,000 sf)
- Iron Point: secured a professional services tenant (~7,400 sf)

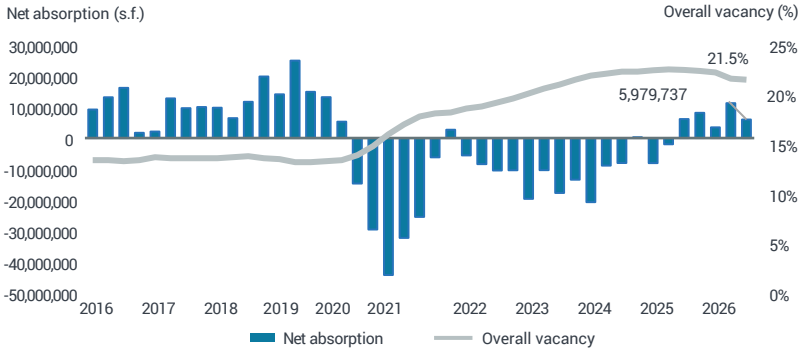

YTD Completed AEIs

- The Plaza Buildings: repositioning of 10800 Building lobby and completion of The Post
- The Westpark Portfolio: outdoor pavilion refresh
- Westech 360: delivery of two new spec suites and outdoor amenity refresh
- 105 Edgeview: first-floor furniture refresh and fourth-floor renovation

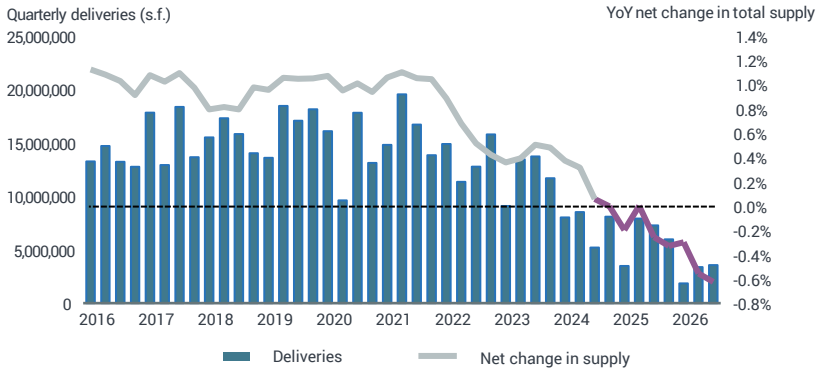

Recovery Gains Momentum as Fundamentals Strengthen

- Demand momentum persists
  - Leasing volume +6.4% over the last 12 months; gateway markets +13%
  - 5th consecutive quarter of positive net absorption, with +6.0 million sf in Q3
  - Signed leases averaged +13% footprint expansion over the past 12 months
- Supply dynamics support recovery
  - Office inventory contracted by >45 million sf from late-2023 peak
  - 9.6 million sf removed in Q3 vs 3.5 million sf delivered
  - Just 24.8 million sf under construction, keeping new supply constrained
- Quality continues to outperform
  - Effective rents are rising fastest in trophy and new-construction properties, where high-quality space is becoming increasingly scarce
  - High-end availability is expected to remain extremely constrained as the development pipeline diminishes

Historical absorption and vacancy

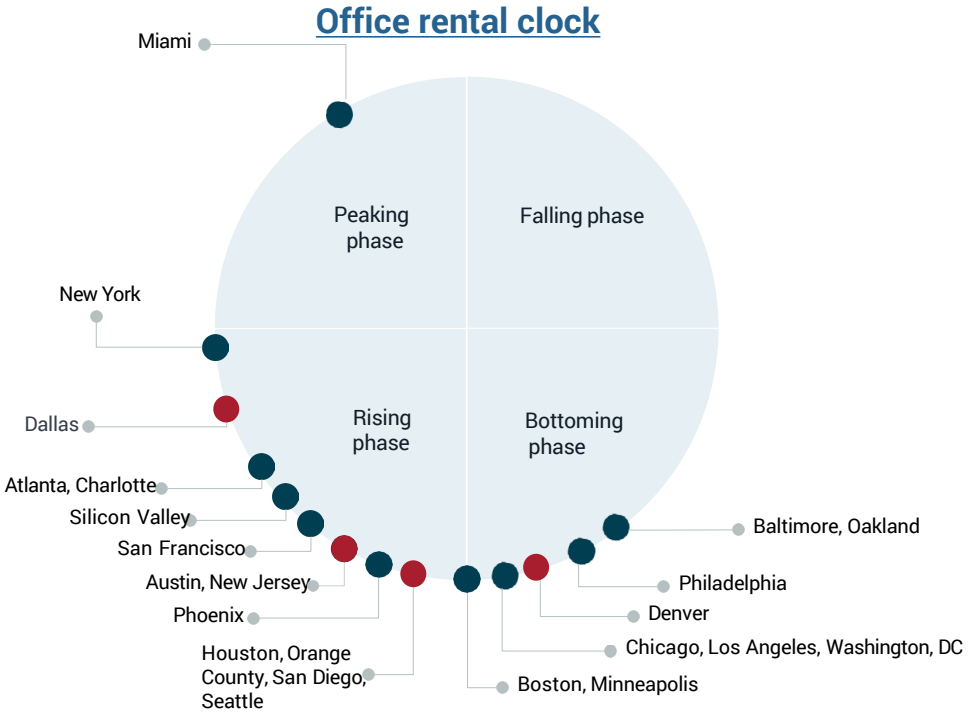

Historical deliveries and pipeline

Well-placed in Cities that are Mostly in Rising Phase

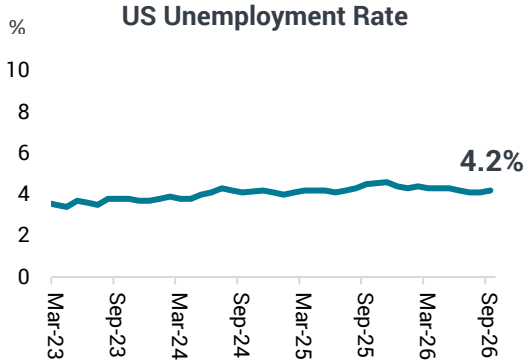

- Leading U.S. office markets have recovered to 94% of 2019 leasing levels, with mid-stage markets at 85%
- Most of KORE's markets are in the Rising Phase, positioning the portfolio to benefit from continued market recovery

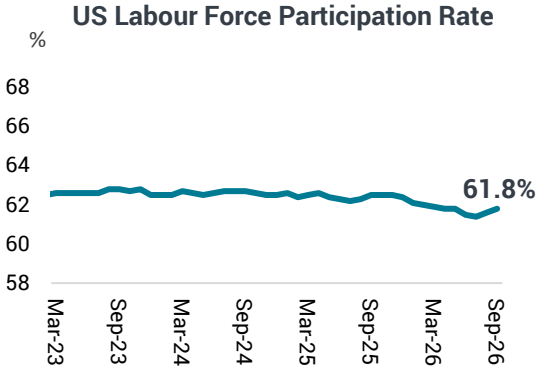

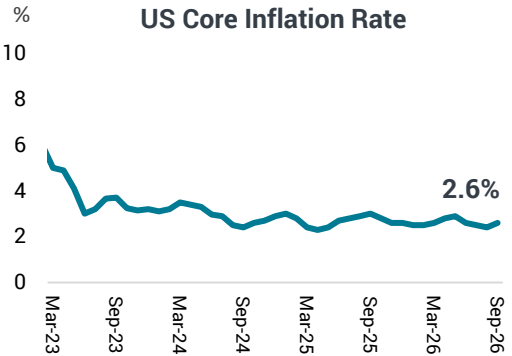

Information from Office Market Dynamics, United States Q3 2026, JLL. JLL's rental clock is based on effective rents, which account for those concessions and better reflect actual market conditions.

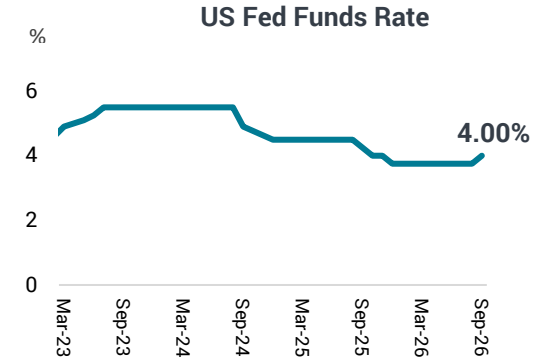

US Economic Updates

- Economic growth remains positive despite a moderation in momentum: 2Q 2026 real GDP growth of 2.2% annualised[(1)] supported by consumer spending and strong business investment
- Geopolitical tensions and trade policy uncertainty persists, with energy and tariff-related pressures adding to the inflation outlook
- Labour market remains resilient but hiring has slowed, with layoffs remained contained
- Inflation remains sticky, interest rates likely to remain higher for longer as Fed balances persistent inflation against softer labour conditions
