PRESS RELEASE

KLW Holdings raises sustainability standards with ISO 14001:2004 certification for its Malaysian subsidiary SINGAPORE - (21 April 2015) - KLW Holdings Limited ("KLW" and together with its subsidiaries, the "Group"), an investment holding company with an established business in the manufacturing and distribution of environmentally-friendly engineered doors, wishes to announce that it has received the ISO 14001:2004 certification for its Malaysian subsidiary KLW Wood Products (M) Sdn. Bhd. ("KLW Wood Products") today. KLW Wood Products' factory, located in the state of Johor, Malaysia, has been producing green-labelled, environmentally-friendly wooden door sets made from sustainable wood sources and recycled materials from agricultural waste as well as forestry waste.

This adds to the ISO 9001:2008 certification KLW Wood Products has already received and makes both of the Group's Malaysia and China operations under Dongguan Lebex Doors Co., Ltd. ("Dongguan Lebex") certified under both the ISO 14001:2004 and the ISO 9001:2008 standards.

The ISO 14001:2004 standard provides organisations with a framework for an effective environmental management system that aims to achieve environmental goals like protecting the environment, preventing pollution and minimising the environmental impact of business operations.

KLW Wood Products was certified to be compliant with the standard based on an audit conducted on 31 March 2015.

Managing Director of the Group, Mr Lee Boon Teck said, "We feel encouraged to receive this certification and this is an important seal of endorsement on our products. Environmental protection continues to remain a growing concern in our industry as well as in this world. More consumers, especially those in our key markets like Europe, are demanding products that come from companies with certified environmentally-sustainable operations.

We expect this trend to grow and are taking steps to restructure our business and readjust our operations in order to raise our standards in sustainable practices as a business and to become a more environmentally-conscious organisation in all aspects of our operations.

Our sustainability drive applies to new ventures that we might embark on in the future. In fact, one area we are now looking at is reusing and recycling our waste materials, like wood off cuts and sawdust that we generate from our daily operations. Ideally, we want to become a zero-waste operation."

Apart from the ISO certifications, both KLW Wood Products and Dongguan Lebex also have a Chain-of-Custody certification from the Forest Stewardship Council (FSC) which assures consumers that the wood originates from forests that are managed to meet the social, economic and ecological needs of present and future generations, and that the flow of wood is tracked throughout the entire production process.

This is in addition to the European Union Timber Regulation prohibiting the use of illegally harvested wood, which KLW already complies with in order to be a legal distributor of wood products into Europe.

In addition to its manufacturing operations in Malaysia and China, KLW's wholly-owned subsidiary in Singapore, KLW Joinery Pte Ltd, engaged mainly in the supply and installation of wooden doors to the Singapore market, also has a Singapore Green Label award for using renewable and sustainable materials for its products available for sale in the Singapore market.
