Sometime between 1997 and 1998, Lim Chwee Kim ("Mr Lim"), as the managing director of RichLand Logistics Services Pte Ltd ("RLS"), assisted in an investigation by the Corrupt Practices Investigation Bureau ("CPIB") which, as far as Mr Lim understood, involved alleged activities of a manager of a freight forwarder customer of RLS receiving bribes. Mr Lim was queried by the CPIB whether he had extended bribes to this manager, to which he confirmed that he had not. The CPIB did not approach Mr Lim following the said investigation and as far as he is aware, as of the date of this appointment announcement, there has been no further contact or request for assistance from the CPIB in relation to this matter thereafter.

Between September and October 2001, Mr Lim, as the managing director of RLS, was queried by the CPIB concerning, as far as Mr Lim understood, whether RLS extended bribes in order to obtain business. Mr Lim was queried by the CPIB on whether RLS had extended bribes to certain clients in question. He co-operated fully with the CPIB and confirmed that RLS was not involved in any such activity. The CPIB did not approach Mr Lim following the said investigation and as far as he is aware, as of the date of this appointment announcement, there has been no further contact or request for assistance from the CPIB in relation to this matter thereafter.

Between 2004 and 2008, Mr Lim, as the director and chief executive officer of Richland Group Limited ("RGL"), assisted in two more investigations by the CPIB concerning whether RGL had extended bribes in order to obtain business. In these investigations, Mr Lim was queried by the CPIB on whether RGL extended bribes to certain clients in question. He co-operated fully with the CPIB and confirmed that RGL was not involved in any such activity. The CPIB did not approach Mr Lim following the said investigations and as far as he is aware, as of the date of this appointment announcement, there has been no further contact or request for assistance from the CPIB in relation to this matter thereafter.

Sometime in 2009, Mr Lim had assisted in an investigation by the CPIB in his capacity as a personal friend of the subject of the investigation. Mr Lim was not the subject of the investigation. To the best of Mr Lim's knowledge, the investigation involved corruption charges against his personal friend. Mr Lim was queried by the CPIB on whether he had extended a loan to his friend, to which he had confirmed that he had extended a loan of S$5,000 in his capacity as a personal friend. The CPIB did not approach him following the said investigation and as far as he is aware, as of the date of this appointment announcement, there has been no further contact or request for assistance from the CPIB in relation to this matter thereafter.
