Ixom announces planned leadership renewal

Melbourne – As part of a planned leadership renewal, Ixom HoldCo Pty Ltd (Ixom), would like to announce that David Head has been appointed as the Interim Chief Executive Officer (CEO) of Ixom with immediate effect replacing Paul Atkinson, while Ixom launches a global executive search to engage and identify suitable candidates.

Andrew Larke, Chairman of Ixom, said, “On behalf of the Board, I would like to thank Paul for his service, commitment and dedication. During his tenure, he led the leadership team in streamlining Ixom’s asset portfolio, sharpening the business focus and setting a platform for future growth. We wish Paul well for his future endeavours. At the same time, I am glad to welcome David as Ixom’s interim CEO.”

David has over 30 years of experience in leading companies spanning a wide range of industries in Australia, New Zealand, Asia and Europe. Most recently, he was Managing Director and CEO of ASX listed Clean Seas Seafood, a sustainable aquaculture company, where he successfully transformed the business, doubling its revenues during his tenure. He has also held CEO roles at Leigh Mardon Group, Calum Textile Group, Lion Nathan and Pepsi.
