Sometime between 1997 and 1998, Lim Chwee Kim, as the managing director of RichLand Logistics Services Pte Ltd ("RLS"), assisted in an investigation by the Corrupt Practices Investigation Bureau ("CPIB") which, as far as Lim Chwee Kim understood, involved alleged activities of a manager of a freight forwarder customer of RichLand Group Limited ("RGL") receiving bribes. Lim Chwee Kim was asked by the CPIB whether he had extended bribes to this manager, to which he replied that he had not. The CPIB did not approach Mr Lim following the investigation and as far as he is aware, no further action has been taken by CPIB.

Between September and October 2001, Lim Chwee Kim, as the managing director of RLS, was queried by the CPIB concerning, as far as Lim Chwee Kim understood, whether RLS extended bribes in order to obtain business. Lim Chwee Kim was asked by the CPIB whether RLS had extended bribes to certain clients in question. He co-operated fully with the CPIB and confirmed that RLS was not involved in any such activity. The CPIB did not approach Mr Lim following the investigation and as far as he is aware, no further action has been taken by the CPIB.

Between 2004 and 2008, Lim Chwee Kim, as the director and chief executive officer of RGL, assisted in two more investigations by the CPIB concerning whether RGL had extended bribes in order to obtain business. In these investigations, Lim Chwee Kim was asked by the CPIB whether RGLextended bribes to certain clients in question. He co-operated fully with the CPIB and confirmed that RGL was not involved in any such activity. The CPIB did not approach Mr Lim following the abovementioned investigations and as far as he is aware, no further action has been taken by the CPIB.
