represents a celebratory moment for local automotive innovation and progress. Scorpio Electric is the first home-grown automotive manufacturer to design, engineer, and successfully register a premium high-performance electric motorcycle for Singapore roads.

Progress for Singapore's Electric Vehicle Ecosystem

Named after a star in the Scorpius constellation, the Lambda Scorpii represents a blend of avant-garde aesthetics and smart urban mobility. Having already attained European Whole Vehicle Type Approval, this first local registration confirms that the Lambda Scorpii meets Singapore's highest standards for safety, technical infrastructure, and civil defence emergency readiness.

"An incredibly proud moment for our team, partners and for Singapore," said Joshua Goh, CEO of Scorpio Electric. "Now that we have validated our roadworthiness, we will now focus on setting up a world-class production ecosystem. From Singapore to the World."

Next Steps Toward Commercialisation

With local homologation, and registration successfully completed, Scorpio Electric is focused toward its next strategic phase: manufacturing optimisation, global supply chain scaling, and infrastructure integration. Scorpio Electric will execute a phased commercial rollout. Scorpio Electric will also finalise regional distributor networks, and collaborate with local charging infrastructure providers to optimise a smooth user experience.

To satisfy the local growing EV interest, Scorpio Electric will soon announce exclusive preview events, technical showcases, and limited-run priority pre-order windows for early adopters.
